How it Works

- Judges for the Mini-BOS will be selected based on judging experience, category experience, and judge rank.
- No one judge will judge a Beer Mini-BOS and then judge Beer BOS.
- No one judge will judge a Mead Mini-BOS and then judge Mead BOS.
- No one judge will judge a Cider Mini-BOS and then judge Cider BOS.

Benefits

- Reduce judge fatigue.
- Reduce down time between sessions for judges.
- Reduce lag time between end of category judging and the beginning of Mini-BOS judging.
- Eliminate judge constraint of Mini-BOS finishing and next category judging starting.
- Reduce bias carryover from category judging to the Mini-BOS round.
- 3 Category Judging sessions complete in 7 hours with lunch.
- Allows more judging to be done in a shorter amount of time.
  - Less time away from conference events.
  - Get 1.5 judging points a day instead of just 1. BOS judges 2 points.

Keys to Success

- 8 or less entries per a pair of Category Judges.
  - Diminishing returns after 8.
  - Judges take longer to fill out sheets, get more chatty, palate fatigue.
- Category Judges reach an impasse on an entry?
  - Send it to Mini-BOS. Resolved quicker there.
  - Judges still have a job to do though. No more than 3 entries passed on to a Mini-BOS per a pair of judges.
- Mini-BOS Judges reach an impasse on an entry placing?
  - Judge Coordinator assigns an arbitrator judge to break the impasse.
- 2 hours plenty of time to judge 6 to 8 entries.
  - Time intended for all efforts, including Stewards and Beer Runners.
  - Judges can't downshift. 10 minute average judge time per an entry.
- Get Mini-BOS going as soon as possible.
  - Lag time can be a killer.

Changes From Last Year

- Mini-BoS judges will be assigned to multiple and specific flights in the session they're scheduled.
- Randy Scorby has joined the team and will oversee the events in the Mini-BoS room.
